

A Princess Easter

Tiana's Easter Parade

Easter was coming soon. Princess Tiana, Prince Naveen, and their friends were decorating a float for the big Easter parade. Everyone was working hard.

Then Charlotte asked, "Who will be the star of this float?"

Everyone had a special talent.
Charlotte had learned to sew,
so she made a beautiful Easter dress to wear in the parade.

Naveen knew the latest dance moves.

And Louis was ready with new songs to play on his trumpet.

“Actually,” said Prince Naveen, “Tiana should be the star, because she brought us all together!”

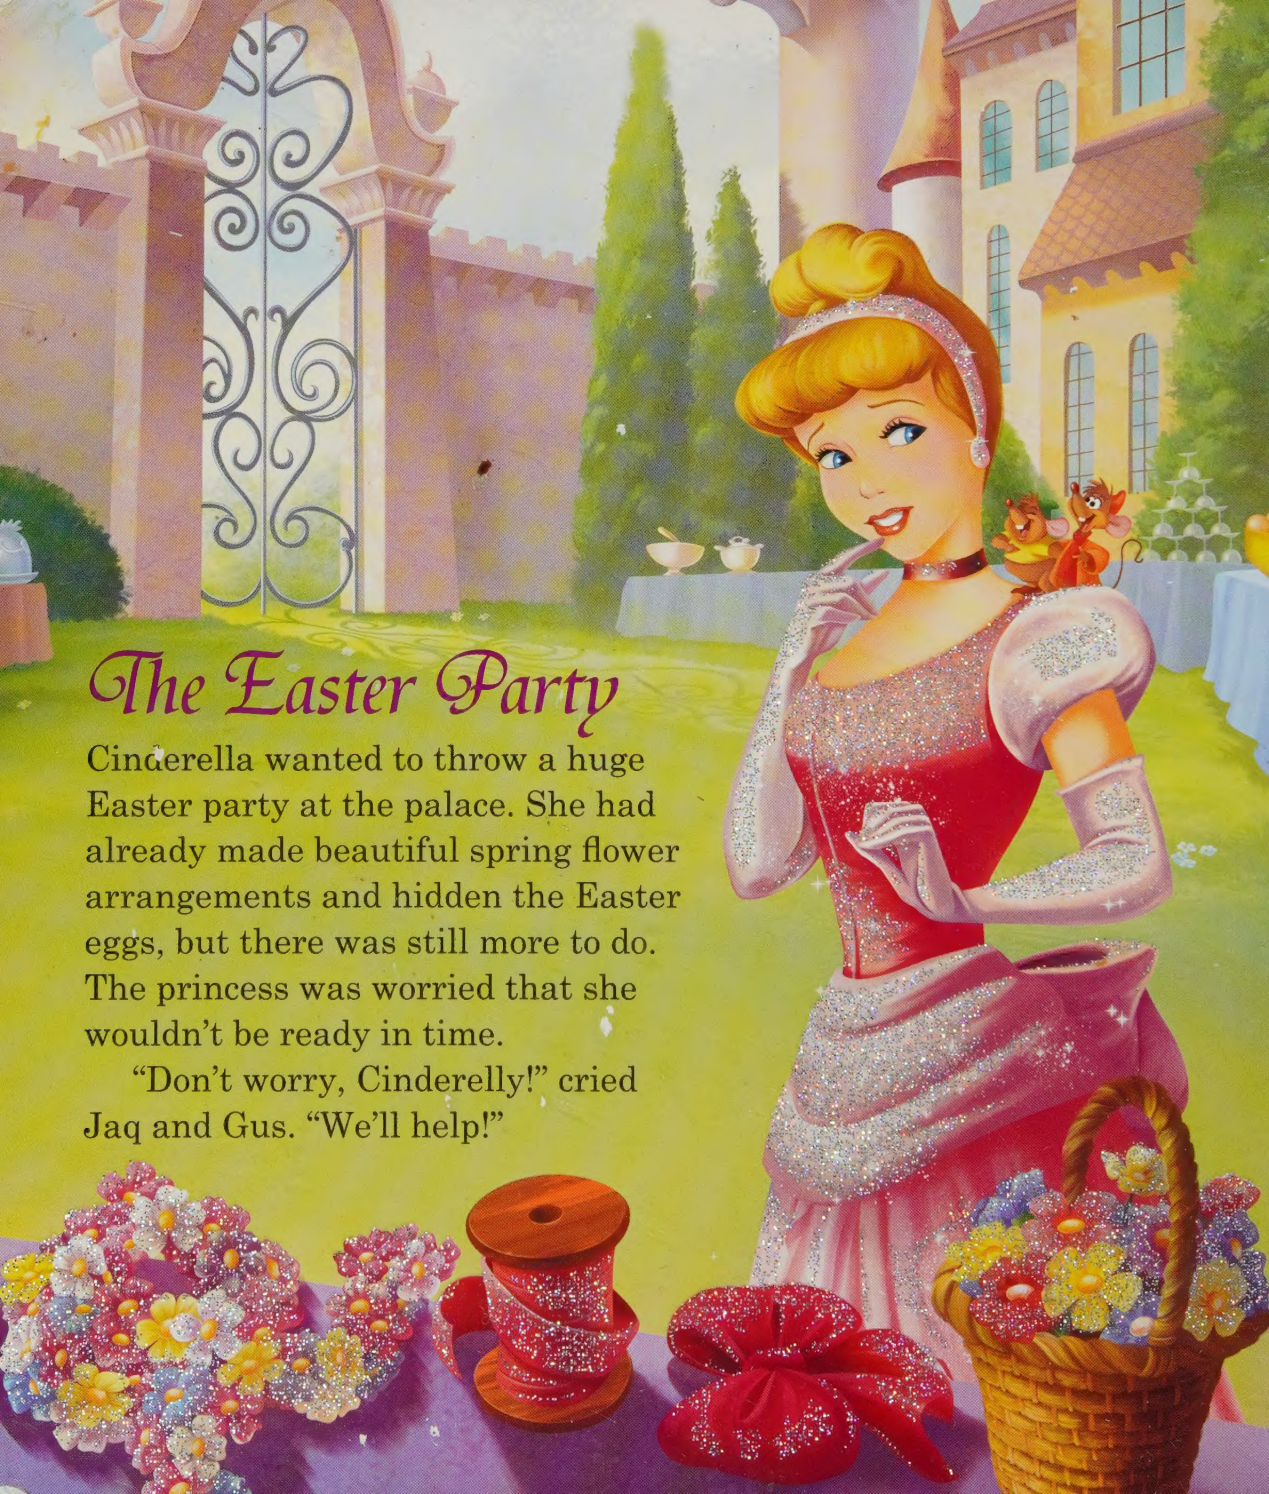

Tiana laughed. “Even though I make tasty beignets, I’m not a star. But I guess I did bring us all together’ . . .

“... which is why we should all be stars on this float!” she said.

So, on the day of the Easter parade, they all rode on the float. And it was the most magnificent float in the parade!

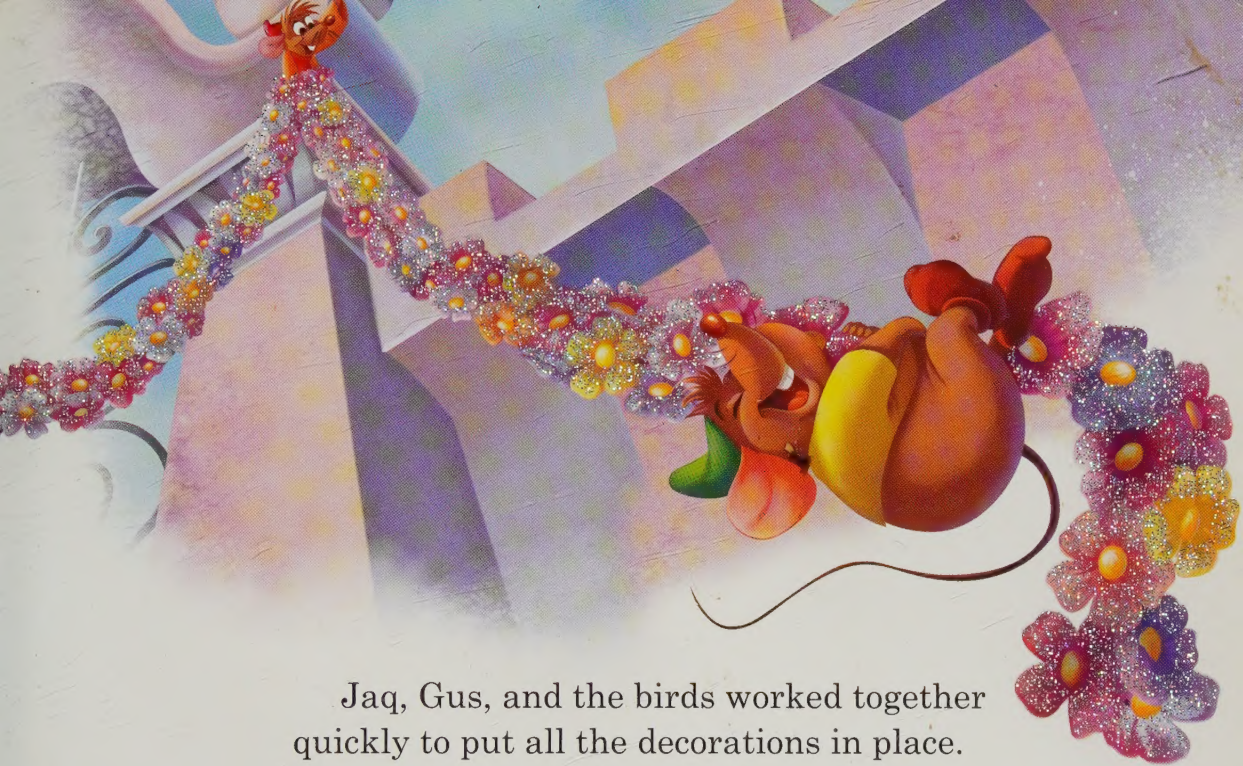

A full-page illustration of Cinderella in a palace garden. She is wearing a red and pink sparkling gown with a tiara and gloves, looking thoughtfully at her finger. In the background, there is a large ornate gate, a castle, and a table with a white tablecloth. Two small mice, Jaq and Gus, are perched on her shoulder. In the foreground, there are various party decorations including a floral lei, a spool of red ribbon, a large red bow, and a basket of flowers.

The Easter Party

Cinderella wanted to throw a huge Easter party at the palace. She had already made beautiful spring flower arrangements and hidden the Easter eggs, but there was still more to do. The princess was worried that she wouldn't be ready in time.

"Don't worry, Cinderelly!" cried Jaq and Gus. "We'll help!"

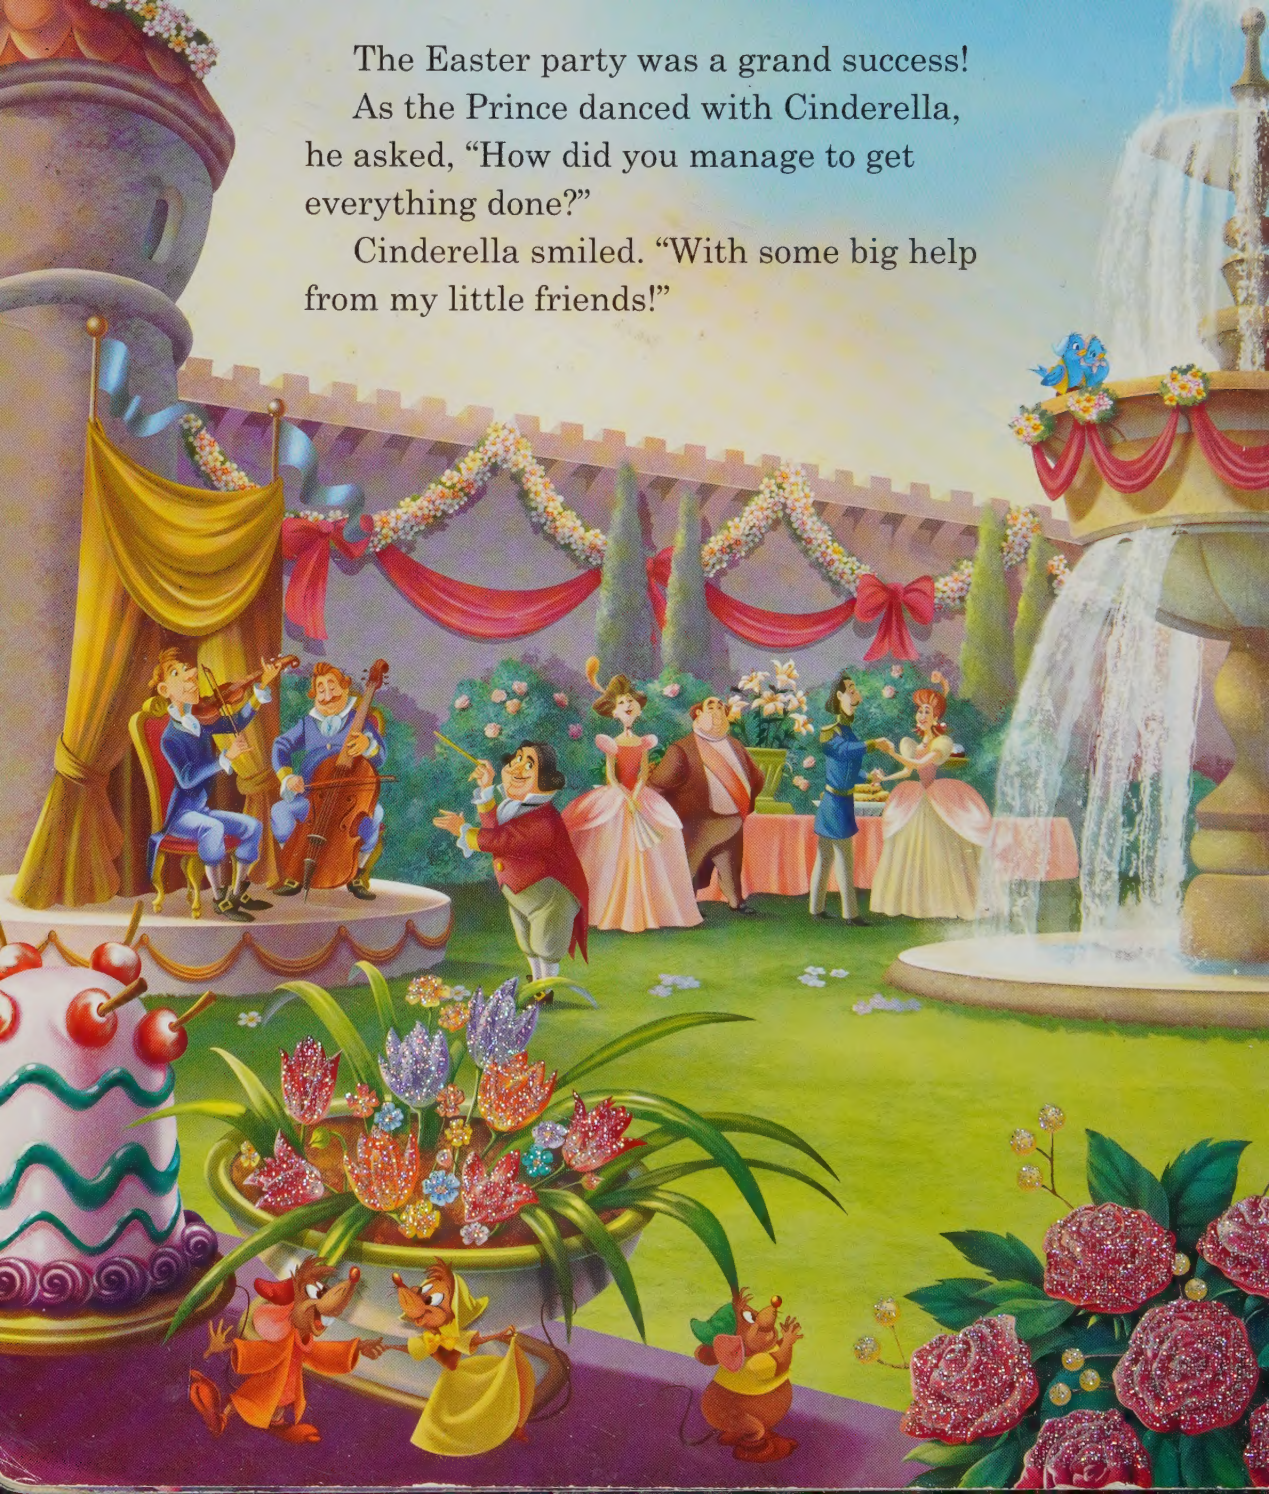

Jaq, Gus, and the birds worked together quickly to put all the decorations in place. Everything looked beautiful.

The Easter party was a grand success!
As the Prince danced with Cinderella, he asked, "How did you manage to get everything done?"

Cinderella smiled. "With some big help
from my little friends!"
